

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Josh BACON, MA

joshua.bacon@gmail.com

Mr. Bacon was the head of the Israel Research Desk at the Institute for NGO Research in Jerusalem, Israel. He has published articles in a number of journals including the Israel Yearbook on Human Rights, Middle East Quarterly, and several others in the fields of international law, civil society, terrorism and the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Lt. Col. Győző CSANÁDI

gyozo.csanadi@gmail.com

Lt. Col. Győző Csanádi is a senior officer in the Hungarian MoD/General Staff CIS Branch. He has three Bachelor's Degrees and graduated obtaining a master's degree in Management of Information Systems in 2002. First he served in various field artillery commanding officer positions from 1988 until 1997. After acquiring a special degree in Information Technology, he joined the Air Force and continued his work as Radar and Air C2 Information Technologies field-engineer and held other positions too until 2007. Since 2007 he has served as a staff officer dealing with the co-ordination of mainly Air-Force C2 system development, planning, and administrative issues. He was the National Representative of Hungary in the NATO CIS software workgroups, and also fulfilled the position of CIS Chief in EUFOR HQ, Bosnia and Herzegovina. After a four-year NATO posting at a Corps-level NATO HQ, he continued his service in the Hungarian MoD/GS. He frequently publishes scientific articles. His special fields of interest are information technology and information management issues. Since he has vast experience of various Information Systems management issues (e.g. NovellNetWare, OpenVMS and UNIX systems) and he is also a programmer, he has a broad and quite detailed view of the military applications in use.

István HARKAI, dr. jur.

harkai.istvan89@gmail.com

Dr. István Harkai is a PhD student at the University of Szeged, Faculty of Law. He graduated as a lawyer from the University of Szeged in 2014. After graduation he worked for the Office of Immigration and Nationality of Hungary. As a researcher, his sphere of interest covers the fields of International Public Law, International Humanitarian Law, European and International Intellectual Property Law and Copyright Law.

Hanga HORVÁTH-SÁNTHA

santha.hanga@uni-nke.hu

Hanga Horváth-Sántha holds a degree in Master of Laws from the University of Stockholm, Sweden, including a year of masters studies at the Université de Fribourg, Switzerland. Parallel to her legal studies she specialized in security policy, asymmetrical threats and terrorism studies at the Swedish National Defence University. Her work experience includes the drafting and implementation of the Swedish National Action Plan to safeguard democracy against violence-promoting extremism at the Swedish Ministry of Justice. Hanga Horváth-Sántha has also worked as a special advisor at the Crisis Management Coordination Secretariat at the Prime Minister's Office in Sweden and has held a position as a strategic advisor at the Swedish National Police Board. Currently she works at the Budapest-based Migration Research Institute and is a PhD candidate at the Faculty of Military Science and Officer Training of the National University of Public Service, Budapest. Her research topic is the root causes and psycho-social motivational factors behind Jihadist radicalization and terrorism in Europe.

Éva JAKUSNÉ HARNOS, PhD

jakusne.harnos.eva@uni-nke.hu

Éva Jakusné Harnos holds a PhD in linguistics. Her area of research is the implicit content of the media, which can be revealed with the methods of political discourse analysis and propaganda analysis. She was a member of the Stylistic Research Team of Eötvös Loránd University, Budapest, from 2003 to 2008. She is a member of the public board of Section I (Linguistics and Literary Scholarship) of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. At present, she is a teacher of English and Head of the Foreign and Special Language Centre at the Faculty of International and European Studies, National University of Public Service. She conducts research into strategic communication and military special language.

Maj. Attila KASZNÁR, PhD

kasznar.attila@uni-nke.hu

Maj. Attila Kasznár holds a PhD degree in Political Sciences from the University of Pécs. He is currently the head of the Counter-Terrorism Department of the Institute of National Security in the National University of Public Service. He is an expert of South and South East Asian issues and modern terrorism.

Lt. Col. (Ret.) László KELEMEN, dr. jur.

kenterenator@gmail.com

Lt. Col. Kelemen holds a degree in law. During his active carrier he served in the Hungarian Defence Forces (HDF) and filled various legal and administrative positions. For some years he acted as a lecturer at Hungarian military higher education institutions. He is a graduate of the US Judge Advocate General's School where he received a second master's degree (LLM). He served in the Hungarian KFOR contingent in Kosovo and performed two duty tours at the NATO Headquarters in Naples, Italy acting as a legal and an executive officer. After retirement he joined the reserve component of the HDF as a Major, and in this capacity he was deployed to the EU Training Mission Somalia, where he served as the Legal Advisor for two years.

Col. (Ret.) József KIS-BENEDEK, PhD

kbjosef48@gmail.com

Col. József Kis-Benedek is an honorary professor, his background is military intelligence. He possesses a PhD degree in military sciences. His last military position was deputy director of production at the Military Intelligence Office. He served as a defence attaché 10 years abroad. Currently he gives lectures at many universities in Hungary. His area of research are the Middle East, terrorism, intelligence and crisis management.

Ilias KOUSKOUVELIS, Docteur d'Etat

iliaskou@uom.edu.gr

Mr Kouskouvelis is a Professor of International Relations and holder of the "Thucydides Hellenic National Defense General Staff Chair in Strategic Studies" at the University of Macedonia, Thessaloniki, Greece. He has written extensively on International Relations theory, strategic studies, decision making, European integration and Middle East affairs; he has authored seven books, more than 40 articles, and more than 300 op-eds. His most recent work is Theory of Decision Making in Thucydides (in Greek), and he is currently working on the book's English edition under a contract with Lexington Books. Professor Kouskouvelis is directing the 'Institute for International, European, and Defense Analyses' (IDEA) and, among others, has served as the University's Rector.

Itai REUVENI, MA

itai@ngo-monitor.org

Mr. Reuveni is head of the Israel Research desk at the Institute for NGO Research in Jerusalem, Israel. He has co-authored numerous reports and briefings on the role of NGOs in the Arab-Israeli conflict. His areas of expertise include Security and Soft Power, Civil Society, and Social Movements. In the past three years, he has lectured at a variety of ATA and YATA platforms around the world.

Rachael M. RUDOLF, PhD

rachaelrudolph@gmail.com

Mr. Rudolf is currently a lecturer and researcher at Department of International Relations, College of Arts and Sciences of Webster University Thailand. He is teaching an eight-course load per academic year (4/3/1) among others in the following areas: Counterterrorism, and Security Policies; Comparative Politics (focus on corruption); Conduct of Foreign Policy (focus on foreign policy decision-making); Human Trafficking; Intelligence. He is also serving in the capacity of adviser, mentor and/or reader for student research papers and theses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels in the areas of the Middle East and North Africa and/or on topical subjects such as terrorism, security, foreign policy, and humanitarian aid/relief work.

Fruzsina SIMIGH

simigh.fruzsina@gmail.com

Fruzsina Simigh is a research fellow at the HDF General Staff Scientific Research Center. Previously she worked as a junior China analyst at the Pallas Athéné Geopolitical Institute, has a BA degree in International Relations from Budapest Corvinus University, and studies Eastern Asia Studies at Pázmány Péter Catholic University.

Bálint SOMKUTI, PhD

somkuti.balint@t-online.hu

Balint Somkuti, PhD is an assistant lecturer of the Counter Terrorism Faculty, National Security Institute, National University of Public Service. He has an MA degree in history from Károli Gáspár Református Egyetem (Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary), and a PhD in the field of military sciences from the National University of Public Service. His areas of interest are unconventional, hybrid and guerilla warfare, as well as general military theory and grand strategy.

1st Lt. Ákos TRESZKAI

treszkai.akos@tek.gov.hu

First Lieutenant Ákos Treszkai works for the Intelligence Directorate of the Hungarian Counter Terrorism Centre (TEK) as an intelligence officer. He has a master's degree in National Security from the National University of Public Service, Budapest. He is responsible for the African region regarding CT issues. As an independent researcher, he is currently conducting research on security and defense policy, especially issues of water conflicts in Africa.